SAM PRECIOUS METALS

1. INTRODUCTION

- 1.1. In recent years, rapid globalisation and accelerating technological disruptions have led to combating of money laundering and the financing of terrorism become a challenge of unprecedented magnitude. Everyday organisations, across the globe, see new threats arise because of their global presence and vast diversity of products, markets, business lines, and distribution channels. Several factors such as development of an integrated and interconnected global economy, free trade, establishment of global banking and financial systems, increasing proliferation of new non-cash payment methods, and less restricted movement of human capital have opened new avenues for money launderers. An internationally coordinated and coherent at various levels is required to protect the integrity and stability of the international financial system, cut off the resources available to terrorists, and make it more difficult for those engaged in crime to profit from their criminal activities.

For the purpose of this policy (“the Policy”), Money Laundering, Financing of Terrorism and Financing of Illegal Organisations is defined as follows:

- Money Laundering

Money laundering is defined as any financial or banking transaction aimed at concealing or changing the identity of illegally obtained funds by passing them through the financial and banking system to make them appear as originating from legitimate sources, and then re-pumping and investing them in a legal manner contrary to their real nature. Simply put, money laundering is the process of making dirty money look clean. Criminals launder money so they can avoid detection by law enforcement authorities and make personal use of illicit proceeds – including further criminal activity and investment in legitimate businesses.

Federal Decree-Law No. (20) Of 2018 On ‘Anti-Money Laundering and Combating the Financing of Terrorism and Financing of Illegal Organisations’ (the “AML/CFT Law”) defines money laundering as engaging in any of the following acts wilfully, having knowledge that the funds are the proceeds of a felony or a misdemeanour (i.e., a predicate offence):

- Transferring or moving proceeds or conducting any transaction with the aim of concealing or disguising their illegal source.
- Concealing or disguising the true nature, source or location of the proceeds as well as the method involving their disposition, movement, ownership of or rights with respect to said proceeds.
- Acquiring, possessing or using proceeds upon receipt.
- Assisting the perpetrator of the predicate offense to escape punishment.

Stages of Money Laundering:

Money laundering often involves a complex series of transactions that are difficult to separate. However, it is common to think of money laundering as occurring in three stages:

Placement: This is the first stage in separating the illicit funds from their illegal source. During this phase, initial proceeds derived from illegal activity is introduced into the financial system. Typically, this is executed by placing the funds into circulation through formal financial institutions, casinos, real estate sector, gold and precious metal industry, restaurant, and other legitimate businesses, both domestic and international.

Layering: Once the proceeds from illicit activities has entered into the financial system, the next stage in the process involves converting the illegal funds into another form and creating complex layers of financial transactions to conceal the origin and ownership of funds, making it difficult to associate the funds to the predicate crime.

Integration: This is the third stage that completes the money laundering cycle. By this stage, the laundered fund appears to be legitimate, and it is exceedingly difficult to distinguish between legal and illegal wealth. The integration schemes are designed to place the laundered proceeds back into the economy in what appears to be normal business or personal transactions.

- Financing of Terrorism

Over time, the number and type of terrorist groups and related threats have changed, but the basic need for terrorists to raise, move and use funds has remained the same. As the size, scope and structure of terrorist organisations have evolved, so too have their methods to raise and manage funds. Terrorists regularly adapt how and where they raise and move funds and other assets in order to circumvent safeguards that jurisdictions have put in place to detect and disrupt this activity. Terrorist financing involves dealing with funds and assets, in any form, that may be used for financing terrorist activities. The funds and assets may be from either legitimate or criminal sources.

The AML/CFT Law defines Financing of Terrorism as:

- Committing any act of money laundering, being aware that the proceeds are wholly or partly owned by a terrorist organisation or terrorist person or intended to finance a terrorist organisation, a terrorist person, or a terrorism crime, even if it without the intention to conceal or disguise their illicit origin; or
- Providing, collecting, preparing, or obtaining proceeds or facilitating their obtainment by others with intent to use them, or while knowing that such proceeds will be used in whole or in part for the commitment of a terrorist offense, or committing such acts on behalf of a terrorist organisation or a terrorist person while aware of their true background or purpose.

- Financing of Illegal Organisations

The AML/CFT Law defines Financing of Illegal Organisations as:

- Committing any act of money laundering, being aware that the proceeds are wholly or partly owned by an illegal organisation or by any person belonging to an illegal organisation or intended to finance such illegal organisation or any person belonging to it, even if without the intention to conceal or disguise their illicit origin.
- Providing, collecting, preparing, obtaining proceeds or facilitating their obtainment by others with intent to use such proceeds, or while knowing that such proceeds will be used in whole or in part for the benefit of an Illegal organisation or of any of its members, with knowledge of its true identity or purpose.

2. NEGATIVE EFFECTS OF MONEY LAUNDERING

- 2.1. Money laundering, terrorist and proliferation financing can destabilise communities, economic sectors, or national economies. Criminals and terrorist networks may be able to carry out their criminal and potentially destructive activities via a multitude of mechanisms and structures by transforming the proceeds of illicit activities into legitimate money.
- 2.2. Money laundering has potentially devastating economic, security, and social consequences. Money laundering is a process to making crime worthwhile. It provides the fuel for drug dealers, smugglers, terrorists, illegal arms dealers, corrupt public officials, and others to operate and expand their criminal enterprises. This drives up the cost of government due to the need for increased law enforcement and health care expenditures (for example, for treatment of drug addicts) to combat the serious consequences that result. Crime has become increasingly international in scope, and the financial aspects of crime have become more complex due to rapid advances in technology and the globalization of the financial services industry.
- 2.3. Money laundering impairs the development of the legitimate private sector through the supply of products priced below production cost, making it therefore difficult for legitimate activities to compete. Money launderers often use front companies, which commingle the proceeds of illicit activity with legitimate funds, to hide the ill-gotten gains. These front companies have access to substantial illicit funds, allowing them to subsidize front company products and services at levels well below market rates. Criminals may also turn enterprises which were initially productive into sterile ones to launder their funds leading ultimately to a decrease in the overall productivity of the economy. Furthermore, the laundering of money can also cause unpredictable changes in money demand as well as great volatility in international capital flows and exchange rates.
- 2.4. In any country, strong financial institutions – such as banks, non- bank financial institutions (NBFIs), and equity markets – are critical to economic growth. While the financial sector is an essential constituent in the financing of the legitimate economy, it can be a low-cost vehicle for criminals wishing to launder their funds. Consequently, the flows of large sums of laundered funds poured in or out of financial institutions might undermine the stability of financial markets. Also, there is often a correlation between money laundering and fraudulent activities undertaken by employees. In addition, money laundering may damage the reputation of financial institutions involved in the scheming resulting to a loss in trust and goodwill with stakeholders. In worst case scenarios, money laundering may also result in bank failures and financial crises.
- 2.5. Money laundering also reduces tax revenue as it becomes difficult for the government to collect revenue from related transactions which frequently take place in the underground economy. This loss of revenue generally means higher tax rates than would normally be the case if the untaxed proceeds of crime were legitimate. More taxes are also paid for public works expenditures inflated by corruption.

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

- 2.6. The socio-economic effects of money laundering are various because as dirty money generated from criminal activities are laundered into legitimate funds; they are used to expand existing criminal operations and finance new ones. Further to that money laundering may lead to the transfer of economic power from the market, the government and the citizens to criminals, abetting therefore crimes and corruption. Furthermore, the sheer magnitude of the economic power that accrues to criminals from money laundering has a corrupting effect on all elements of society.
- 2.7. The social and political costs of laundered money are also serious as laundered money may be used to corrupt national institutions. Bribing of officials and governments undermines the moral fabric in society, and, by weakening collective ethical standards, corrupts our democratic institutions. When money laundering goes unchecked, it encourages the underlying criminal activity from which such money is generated.

3. AML / CFT LEGAL AND REGULATORY FRAMEWORK

3.1. International Legislative and Regulatory Framework

- Fighting against money laundering and financing of terrorism is critical for international security, integrity of the financial system and sustainable growth. In response to the threats posed by money laundering and terrorist activities, the international community has acted on many fronts, including the creation of various organizations that are viewed as the international standard setters. 14. RISK FACTORS OF SPECIFIC CONCERN TO SAM PRECIOUS METALS

14.1. As a Gold and Silver Refinery Company in the UAE, in addition to the generalised AML/CFT risk factors, there are several additional risk factors which SAM Precious Metals should be aware of and take into consideration while identifying and assessing the ML/FT risks to which it is exposed.

Some of these risk factors depend on the specific stage of the Gold and Silver (GS) supply chain, and the role of the dealer in regard to the business relationships associated with each stage. Other risk factors relate to the nature and type of the customer or transaction involved.

14.2. The FATF's Mutual Evaluation Report of the UAE issued in April 2020 stated that the precious metals and stones sector is weighted as highly important in terms of risk and materiality in the UAE.

- Attractiveness to illicit finance. The Precious Metals and Stones sector is an important part of the UAE's economy, and provides important, legitimate goods and services to the UAE population and global trading partners. Nevertheless, experience shows that this sectors offer services that are particularly attractive to illicit actors.
- Facilitation of the international movement of value. The Precious Metals and Stones sector allows individuals to move large values across international borders, sometimes with only minimal involvement from the formal financial system. For example, a courier carrying a valuable diamond can move millions of AED of value simply by taking a short international flight. In addition, the Precious Metals and Stones sector allows individuals to hold value in a form that retains value over time (such as gold) without having to maintain an account in the formal financial system. These facilities are useful to many legitimate businesses, but are also highly sought-after by illicit actors.
- Varying regulatory regimes. The extent and nature of regulation on this sector varies widely between jurisdictions. In some jurisdictions, participants such as dealers in precious metals and stones (DPMS) are required to be licensed or registered, and to comply with AML/CFT requirements that are similar to those imposed on Licensed Financial Institutions. These include, at a minimum, the requirement to perform CDD on customers and to report suspicious transactions. Despite the existence of these requirements, however, sector participants are in many cases not closely supervised or monitored for compliance. Their understanding of their risk and of their compliance obligations may not be well-developed or accurate. In other jurisdictions, there are limited or no obligations placed on these actors, and they may not have any understanding of how they can be abused by illicit actors, or the steps they should take to protect themselves.

14.3. Stage involved in GS Supply Chain & Role of Dealers in Gold and Silver (DGS):

+971 4874 8668 / P.O.BOX 485028, DUBAI, UAE. / SAMPRECIOUSMETALS.COM / INFO@SAMPRECIOUSMETALS.COM

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

The trade in GS consists of a complex ecosystem or supply chain from extraction of the raw mineral to eventual sale to the final customer, in which numerous participants are involved. DGS may perform a wide variety of roles or functions relating to the trade in GS, and in order to understand these roles and the potential ML/FT risks they entail, it is necessary to have a basic understanding of the stages of the supply chain. It should be understood that the supply chains for different GS may have certain characteristics which are unique to that particular GS or category of GS. Furthermore, the supply chain is not necessarily a strictly vertical one, in that different participants may trade with each other in multiple directions at different stages of the chain, and certain stages may run concurrently or be skipped altogether. However, in general, these stages, and some of the major ML/FT risks to which each stage is vulnerable, may be simplified as follows:

Extraction / Production: In this stage, the raw minerals containing the GS are extracted, whether through mechanised industrial means (as in underground or open pit mining) or through artisanal methods (as in alluvial manual collection). This stage may also include the sorting and grading of raw minerals, and their preparation for sale. Key ML/FT risks at this stage include but are not limited to the infiltration of the extraction/production process by criminal or terrorist organisations; vulnerability of the supply chain to the introduction of illicit GS, or “commingling”; over-, under-, or false invoicing and accounting fraud. References to this type of fraud throughout this section include but are not limited to misrepresentations of quantity, quality/purity, origin, or price, and the substitution of GS with other (fake) materials, for the purpose of ML/FT. This stage is also vulnerable to numerous predicate offences, such as theft, embezzlement, smuggling, and bribery/corruption. Thus, the extraction/production process may be used as a vehicle for both the creation of and the laundering of illicit proceeds.

Trading in raw minerals: In this stage, raw ores are obtained from the extraction source and traded by dealers. This stage of the supply chain may also involve the export and import of raw ores. Moreover, the market for different types of raw GS may have different characteristics and regulatory regimes. For example, the gold trade in the UAE is strongly impacted by the requirements and compliance of the OECD Due Diligence Guidance for Responsible Supply Chains of Minerals from Conflict-Affected and High-Risk Areas, RJC Code of practice, EBC Rules for Risk Based Due Diligence in the Gold Supply Chain, or LBMA Gold Guidance.

DGS may participate in this stage of the supply chain as traders of raw materials, either as importers, exporters, or as wholesalers or intermediaries in transactions between other physical or legal persons. Such transactions may take place on a direct party-to- counterparty basis, through tenders or auctions, or via electronic or internet exchanges.

This stage of the GS supply chain can be one of the most vulnerable to ML/FT risks, in that the number and variety of participants (including street vendors and regional dealers) can be high, and raw minerals may pass through numerous traders’ hands before moving on to the next stage of the supply chain. Moreover, in the case of some categories of GS, operational, accounting, and fiscal controls can often be decentralised over multiple geographic regions and legal jurisdictions, making them vulnerable to exploitation by fraudsters, criminals, and terrorists. Key ML/FT risks include but are not limited to:

- Commingling or entry of conflict minerals into the supply chain, benefitting criminal or terrorist organisations;

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

- Infiltration of criminal or terrorist organisations among raw mineral traders;
- Prevalence of cash (or cash equivalent) transactions;
- Vulnerability to smuggling.

Beneficiation: In this stage of the GS supply chain, raw minerals are transferred to technically specialised intermediaries for purification and preparation for sale by various processes, such as refining/smelting in regard to precious metal ores. This stage can also include the recycling of existing GS (e.g., the re-smelting of scrap precious metals). DGS may participate in this stage of the supply chain as technical specialists (refiners, cutters, polishers, etc.), or as wholesalers, agents, buyers, or sellers trading with, or on behalf of, such specialists.

Key ML/FT risks at this stage include but are not limited to: the obscuring of traceability of GS through the beneficiation process; trade-based ML; the prevalence of cash/cash- equivalent transactions; and vulnerability to commingling.

Wholesale Trade: In this stage, processed GS (that is, refined precious metals), as well as finished goods (that is, jewellery) are traded on a wholesale basis for a variety of purposes, and through diverse channels, some of which may entail the physical exchange of goods and others of which may be virtual in nature (for example, through certificates or various derivative products). These purposes may include but are not limited to transactions involving:

- Sales to manufacturers/fabricators (e.g. jewellers, factories) for use in various finished products or industrial processes;
- Sales to/from other wholesaler dealers/intermediaries or retail merchants for inventory, stockpiling, or speculation/trading;
- Sales related to Financial Institutions or commodity exchanges for trading or investment purposes.

DGS may participate in this stage of the supply chain as wholesale traders or intermediaries, as well as agents/buyers/sellers on behalf of industrial and retail end users.

Key ML/FT risks at this stage include but are not limited to commingling, trade-based ML, and other known typologies and methods associated with placement, layering and integration.

Retail trade: In this stage, beneficiated GS or finished goods (in particular jewellery fabricated from GS) are sold to, or acquired from, retail customers in the primary or secondary markets. DGS involved in this stage are usually retail merchants involved in selling or buying direct to/from the public. This stage is particularly vulnerable to ML/FT risks connected with commingling, as well as to the classic ML/FT risks associated with placement, layering and integration, and to predicate offences such as fraud, theft and robbery or embezzlement, among others.

14.4. Risks of Precious Metals and Stones

The characteristics of precious metals and stones make them uniquely appropriate as media to store,

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

transfer, and exchange value:

- Precious metals and stones are generally compact, durable, odourless, and of high value.
- Certain metals and stones (e.g., gold or diamond) are widely accepted as a method of exchange or currency.
- Precious metals and stones retain their value over time, and have roughly the same value all over the world.

In addition to these properties, precious metals and stones have characteristics that make them particularly attractive to criminals seeking to launder funds and others engaged in illicit behaviour:

- Differentiating precious metals and stones often requires laboratory techniques, so it can be difficult or impossible to track their movement;
- Precious metals and stones can be transformed (through re-cutting or recycling) into different objects while retaining their value, interrupting known custody and transfer chains;
- Purchase, sale, and exchange of precious metals and stones often takes place outside the formal financial system.

For these reasons, DPMS may be targeted by illicit actors seeking to abuse their services and exploit the advantages of precious metals and stones. Although the majority of transactions involving DPMS are legal, these businesses may trade in items that could be the proceeds of crime, purchased with the proceeds of crime, and/or used to launder the proceeds of crime, unknowingly or complicity.

14.5. Features of DPMS that Increase Risk

Not all DPMS pose equal risk. A DPMS is likely to be considered higher risk when it provides products or services that are attractive to illicit actors, has operations in high-risk jurisdictions, or does not apply appropriate anti-money laundering/combating the financing of terrorism (AML/CFT) controls.

- Regulatory Environment

In many jurisdictions, DPMS are not required to comply with requirements related to identification of customers and reporting suspicious activities. In other jurisdictions, these requirements are nominally in place, but DPMS are not subject to effective supervision and enforcement. Even in a jurisdiction that imposes and enforces such requirements, they frequently apply only to DPMS that engage in cash transactions above a certain value threshold. Where DPMS are unregulated or under-regulated, they are unlikely to be taking effective measures to protect themselves from abuse.

In contrast, an effective AML/CFT framework and supervisory regime for DPMS can protect DPMS by effectively imposing AML/CFT requirements and by detecting, deterring, and prosecuting ML/TF crimes. It is important to note that certain DPMS in the UAE are required to comply with all requirements of AML-CFT Decision, including the requirement to perform Customer Due Diligence (CDD) and report suspicious transactions.

- Products, Services, and Delivery Channels

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

Products, services, and delivery channels that facilitate the rapid, efficient, anonymous movement of value on a large scale will be more attractive to illicit actors and may put a DPMS at a higher risk of abuse. Such products, services, and delivery channels may include:

- Products (such as bullion and uncut stones) that are particularly hard to trace, retain or even increase in value despite being transformed into new forms (melted down, re-cut, etc.), and offer high value by weight.
- Services, such as metal accounts, that allow customers to rapidly purchase and sell precious metals or stones.
- Delivery channels that allow transactions to be carried out quickly and anonymously, such as accepting cash or virtual assets and conducting transactions online or through intermediaries.

▪ Customer Base

The types of customers that a DPMS serves can also impact risk. For example, a DPMS that primarily deals with PEPs may be higher risk than one that serves a lower-profile clientele.

▪ Geography

DPMS may be based, or may trade internationally, in jurisdictions that are higher risk for money laundering, the financing of terrorism, and the financing of proliferation. Such DPMS may pose heightened risk. Higher-risk jurisdictions may be characterized by:

- A low level of government oversight and regulation of the precious metal and stone value chain;
- Low economic and political stability;
- High use of the informal banking system;
- High levels of corruption;
- The presence of terrorist and other non-state armed groups;
- Weak border control measures; and/or
- Sanctions and embargoes

14.6. Typologies

Precious metals and stones may be involved in a wide variety of illicit finance schemes. The following are some of the most common.

▪ Illegal mining or mining supported by the proceeds of crime

In jurisdictions where precious metals or stones are mined, illicit actors may operate small-scale 'artisanal' mines without receiving a license or paying taxes to the state. The products of these mines are then exported to a refining or cutting hub for processing into saleable goods, like gold bullion and cut stones.

In many cases, criminal organizations control a mine or a network of small-scale miners. They may invest the proceeds of other illegal activities, such as drug trafficking, into the illegal mines and take the majority share of the resulting production as a return on investment. When the resulting precious metals or stones are processed, the criminal organization can sell them on world markets. The proceeds fund further illicit activities and may also support terrorism.

▪ Use of precious metals and stones in sanctions evasion

The tradable nature, liquidity, wide availability, and anonymity of precious metals and stones has made them popular with individuals, organizations, and governments seeking to evade sanctions imposed by the United Nations or other jurisdictions. This activity may involve mining precious metals or stones under the control of the sanctioned person; the resulting products are then injected into legal trade using front companies and complicit DPMS, earning money for the sanctioned group. Or sanctioned actors may use precious metals and stones to disrupt a transaction chain involving the formal financial system and thus hide their interest in a transaction.

▪ Evasion of duties on precious metals and stones

Precious metals and stones are often the subject of heavy customs duties and other taxes. As a result, illicit actors will frequently seek to smuggle these goods from high-tax to low-tax jurisdictions, or may declare artificially low values for the goods by misrepresenting their quality or purity.

▪ Trade-based money laundering (TBML)

The value of precious metals and stones varies highly based on their quality and purity, features which may not be apparent to the naked eye. In addition, the value of certain precious stones, particularly diamonds, can differ for different non-industry customers based on their personal preferences. This makes precious metals and stones particularly vulnerable to TBML, in which illicit actors use supposedly or actually licit trade to hide illicit finance. This can take a variety of forms:

- Trading the same goods—often precious stones—repeatedly between co-conspirators to justify funds transfers between members of a criminal network, or between companies owned by the same individual(s). In these schemes, a single precious stone may be repeatedly sold between members of the network, or a single stone may be sold to multiple “purchasers” at the same time, each time with a different description.
- Inflation or deflation of the value of traded stones to provide justification for cross-border transfers. A merchant may sell low-value precious metals or stones to a purchaser, but invoice for higher-quality goods and thus a higher sum. The purchaser pays the full invoice price, justifying the transaction to financial institutions, and also receives illicit goods such as drugs or smuggled items.

▪ Use of precious metals and stones as security for fraudulent loans

In a typology that is often related to TBML, precious metals or stones may be repeatedly sold or falsely valued between members of a network in order to justify loans and other forms of financing.

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

When required to apply AML/CFT measures, SAM Precious Metals, acting in any of the roles mentioned above, should carefully consider factors such as customer risk, geographic risk, channel risk, and product, service, and transaction risk. In particular, consideration should be given to such factors as:

- Counterparty/customer type, complexity and transparency (e.g. whether the counterparty or customer is a physical person, a legal person or a legal arrangement; if a legal person or arrangement, whether part of a larger, more complex group; and whether there is any association with a PEP) – particularly in relation to whether the party appears to be acting on their own or at the behest of a third party, and whether their knowledge and experience level in regard to the product or service and transaction type is appropriate;
- Country of origin of the GS—particularly in relation to whether the country is a known production or trading hub for the type of GS; has adequate regulations and controls; is a High-Risk Country (e.g. is subject to international financial sanctions, has a poor transparency or corruption index, or is a known location for the operation of criminal or terrorist organisations);
- Country of origin or residence status of the counterparty or customer (whether a UAE national or a foreign customer, and in the case of the latter, whether associated with a High-Risk Country)—particularly in relation to the locations where the transaction is conducted, and the goods are delivered;
- Channel by which the counterparty/customer is introduced (e.g. referrals versus walk-in, international versus domestic, in-person or via the internet or other media) and communicates (e.g. remote or personal contact, direct or indirect through a proxy);
- Type, nature and characteristics of the products and/or services, including but not limited to: quantity, quality/level of purity, price/value, form (whether physical or virtual, raw or processed/finished, etc.), rarity, portability, potential for anonymity;
- Type, size, complexity, cost and transparency of both the transaction (including whether the physical or virtual exchange of merchandise is involved) and the means of payment or financing—particularly in relation to whether they appear to be consistent with the counterparty or customer’s socio-economic profile, local market practices, and the degree of expertise required;
- Novelty or unusual nature of the transaction or financial arrangements (including, for example, requirements to expedite the transaction beyond what is customary, unusual delivery requirements, or unusual requests for secrecy), particularly compared with what is normal practice in the local market.

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

20. RISK BASED APPROACH

- 20.1. A risk-based approach (RBA) is central to the effective implementation of the AML/CFT legislation. It means that SAM Precious Metals can identify, assess, and understand the ML/TF risks to which it is exposed, and implement the most appropriate mitigation measures. An RBA requires SAM Precious Metals to have systems and controls that are commensurate with the specific risks of money laundering and terrorist financing facing them. Assessing this risk is, therefore, one of the most important steps in creating a good AML/CFT compliance program and will enable SAM Precious Metals to focus their resources where the risks are higher. In this regard, SAM Precious Metals can take into account its business nature, size and complexity.
- 20.2. SAM Precious Metals will conduct an annual internal risk assessment to identify, assess, and understand the inherent ML/TF risks (i.e., the risks that SAM Precious Metals is exposed to if there were no control measures in place to mitigate them) across all business lines and processes with respect to the following risk factors: customers, products, services and transactions, delivery channels, geographic locations, and any other risk factors.
- 20.3. With the inherent risks as a basis, SAM Precious Metals will determine the nature and intensity of risk mitigating controls to apply to the inherent risks. The assessment of inherent ML/TF risks and of the effectiveness of the risk mitigation measures will result in a residual risk assessment, i.e., the risks that remain when effective control measures are in place. In case the residual risk falls outside the risk appetite of SAM Precious Metals, additional control measures will need to be implemented to ensure that the level of ML/TF risk is acceptable to SAM Precious Metals.
- 20.4. Customers will be reviewed, assessed, and allocated with an appropriate level of risk of money laundering. Customers will be designated as – High, Medium or Low Risk.
- 20.5. All customers are subject to a risk assessment and risk ratings will be recorded in the file. Due diligence requirements must be commensurate with the risk level associated with the customer and enhanced due diligence will be necessary for all higher risk customers.
- High risk customer will be subjected to enhanced levels of due diligence that go beyond the core policies and principles contained in this policy as defined in the next section on Enhanced Due Diligence.
 - Medium risk customers will be subjected to standard level of due diligence in accordance with the core policies and procedures contained within this policy. With regards to a Medium Risk Customer, the Company shall include additional steps to mitigate the medium risk identified for their clients. Some of the documents that may be required to be obtained to provide additional comfort over the risk factors may include, but not limited to, the following:
 - Audited Financial Statement
 - Tax Returns, if available
 - AML Framework, if required by law in their jurisdiction
 - Supply Chain Policy and adherence to the supply chain regulations

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

- Low risk customer may be subjected to simplified due diligence procedures in accordance with the core policies and procedures contained within this policy. However, great care should be exercised to ensure that the Company continues to meet its legal obligations.
- 20.6. Although it is accepted that failure to provide satisfactory due diligence documentation might be indicative of a money laundering concern, it is also recognized that due to the geographic diversity of businesses, on occasion it might prove difficult or impossible to obtain documentation that exactly meets the criteria set out in this policy. In such cases, alternative due diligence methods shall be adopted to mitigate the risks.
- 20.7. If the situation mentioned in Clause 20.4 occur, and there are no reasons to suspect money laundering, the customer documentation should be referred to senior management and/or the Chief Compliance Officer, together with an explanation as to the type of issues that arose. Senior management, in consultation with the Chief Compliance Officer, will review the documentation and consider the risks associated with acceptance of identification evidence that falls outside these procedures.
- 20.8. The risks considered in the assessment and decision process, and the conclusions reached should be properly documented for the customer KYC file, with appropriate sign-off by the individuals involved. Only Senior Management, in consultation with the Chief Compliance Officer, may determine the High-risk level to be attributed to any customer and/ or approve documentation that does not meet the exact requirements of the Company's anti-money laundering policy.
- 20.9. In addition to trigger-based reviews, SAM Precious Metals shall conduct periodic review of Customer's KYC and conduct CDD based on the risk profile of the customer:
- High Risk Customers: Every 12 months
 - Medium Risk Customers: Every 18 months
 - Low Risk Customers: Every 24 months

In relation to customers who did not trigger an alert, SAM Precious Metals may consider refreshing required information and conducting a simplified due diligence by asking the customer to confirm baseline information on file along with documentary proofs.

For customers who triggered an alert, a more in-depth assessment, and review of the customer activity, may be required.

21. ENHANCED DUE DILIGENCE

- 21.1. A High-Risk Customer will be one who presents a higher-than-normal adverse potential risk of involvement in money laundering or financing of terrorism or financing of illegal organization or any other matter that Senior Management or the Chief Compliance Officer consider to be significant.
- 21.2. To mitigate the increased risks associated with the High-Risk Customers, it will be necessary to consider the application of a level of enhanced due diligence for those customers. SAM Precious Metals' Senior Management, in consultation with the Chief Compliance Officer, will determine whether the level of risk is acceptable.

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

- 21.3. Enhanced Due Diligence ("EDD") will need to go beyond the normal requirements applied to the approval and monitoring of customers, as contained within this policy. As the reasons for designation as high risk will vary from customer to customer, the nature and level of enhancement will need to be determined separately as and when high risk customers are identified.
- 21.4. To perform EDD on their customers, the additional documents that may be required to be collected by SAM Precious Metals for the High-Risk Customer may include, but not limited to, the following:
- Audited Financial Statement
 - Tax Return
 - Bank Statements
 - AML/CFT Policy
 - Bank Reference Letter

 - Business Profile
- 21.5. The above-mentioned additional documents, if collected in full or partially, will assist the team to perform further checks to identify controls within the client organization to help gauge the risk and obtain a comfort on engaging with such client.
- 21.6. In case, SAM Precious Metals is not satisfied with the mitigating controls identified during the EDD, the customer will be rejected and will not be onboarded.
- 21.7. All High-Risk customer files must be approved by Senior Management.
- 21.8. SAM Precious Metals shall perform Enhanced Due Diligence in the following scenarios:
- Customer entities incorporated in High-risk countries.
 - Politically Exposed Persons (PEPs) and Close Associates of PEPs.
 - If the customer/transaction is found to be suspicious/unusual.

The above scenarios are reviewed periodically and updated as required through the Quarterly Compliance Committee Meeting.

22. POLITICALLY EXPOSED PERSONS ("PEPs")

22.2. Adverse risk is created for PEPs as they might use their public position, or find that their public position is unknowingly used, for their own personal benefit or the benefit of others who may be involved in illegal activities such as corruption, bribery and fraud.

22.3. Adverse risk is increased considerably when a PEP is located in a high-risk country.

22.4. SAM Precious Metals will ensure that each underlying beneficial owner or controller is not a PEP by performing searches on official national and international databases to screen names against its database or referring to publicly available information. The results of such verification will be recorded.

27. UPDATING OF KYC INFORMATION

- 27.1. KYC is an ongoing process. The foundation of any customer due diligence and monitoring procedures lies in the initial collection of KYC information and the ongoing updating of that information.
- 27.2. SAM Precious Metals will take reasonable steps to ensure that KYC information and documents is updated as and when required.
- 27.3. As a minimum standard, KYC information must be updated every year for business relationships that are ongoing.

28. MONITORING OF CLIENTS' ACTIVITIES

- 28.1. With regards to established Business Relationships, SAM Precious Metals is obliged to undertake ongoing supervision of customers' activity, including auditing transactions executed throughout the course of the relationship to ensure that they are consistent with the information, types of activity, and risk profiles of the customers.

SAM PRECIOUS METALS

- 28.2. In the case of customers or Business Relationships identified as high risk, SAM Precious Metals will obtain more information about the purpose of transactions and enhance ongoing monitoring and review of transactions in order to identify potentially unusual or suspicious activities.
- 28.3. In keeping with the level of risk involved, SAM Precious Metals will evaluate the specifics of the transactions examined in relation to the customer's due diligence information or profile and obtaining sufficient information on the counterparties and/or other parties involved (including but not limited to information from public sources, such as internet searches), in order to determine whether the transactions appear to be:
- Normal (that is, the transactions are typical for the customer, for the other parties involved, and for similar types of customers).
 - Reasonable (that is, whether the transactions have a clear rationale and are compatible with the types of activities that the customer and the counterparties are usually engaged in).
 - Legitimate (that is, whether the customer and the counterparties are permitted to engage in such transactions, such as when specific licenses, permits, or official authorisations are required).

29. INDICATORS OF SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITIES – RED FLAGS

- 29.1. Criminals' methods are constantly evolving, and in many cases are specific to the particularities of a given market or a given type of trust and company services. The following list of red-flag indicators of potentially suspicious transactions is therefore by no means exhaustive.

It is noted the presence of one or more of the indicators below does not necessarily mean that a transaction involves ML/FT; however, it is an indication that enhanced due diligence or further investigation may be required, so that an appropriate determination can be made by the SAM Precious Metals' appointed Chief Compliance Officer as to whether the transaction is suspicious or not.

- 29.2. A red flag should be raised with respect to trade practices in the following circumstances:
- Precious metals and stones originate from a country where there is limited production or no mines at all.
 - Trade in large volumes conducted with countries which are not part of a specific precious metals and stones pipeline.
 - An increase of the volume of the activity in a DGS account despite a significant decrease in the industry-wide volume.
 - Selling or buying precious metals and stones between two local companies through an intermediary located abroad (lack of business justification, uncertainty as to actual passage of goods between the companies).

 - Sale of gold bars, coins, and loose diamonds from a jewelry store (retail).
